Nigerian President Musa Yar'Adua (R) speaks with African Union Commission President Jean Ping during an African Union summit in Abuja, 29 October 2009. The AU Panel of the Wise led by former S. Africa's President Thabo Mbeki was established by the current President of the African Union Muammar Gaddafi a few years ago with the main purpose to solve conflicts within Africa.

AU Peace Council Vows to End Darfur Crisis

African leaders on Thursday gathered in Abuja, Nigeria and combed through proposals on how to resolve a six-year conflict in Sudan's western Darfur region.

Heads of states who sit on the African Union Peace and Security Council were studying recommendations drawn up by a seven-member high-level AU panel of the "wise" led by South Africa's former president Thabo Mbeki.

The high-level panel of the wise African leaders was established by the current President of the African Union Muammar Gaddafi a few years ago.

The team, which was asked critically to examine the situation in Darfur, has recommended the creation of a

Libya: No Restrictions on Visas to Canadians

The Libyan embassy in Ottawa on Tuesday denied reports that it has stopped issuing visas to Canadians.

The embassy in Ottawa said in a statement it "asserts that there are no obstacles or restrictions on the issuance of visas for Canadian citizens to enter Libya." "All types of visas are issued for Canadian applicants in accordance with the procedure applicable to citizens of all countries," it said.

"Many holders of Canadian nationality live in Libya, and they exit and return to it with ease and in an ordinary manner."

CBC television and the online journal Cyberpresse had reported Sunday that Libya had stopped issuing visas to Canadians.
