Meshaal Visits Libya, Meets Saif Al-Islam

The Head of Political Bureau of Hamas Movement Khaled Meshaal arrived in Tripoli December 20 for a visit which he described as part of consultations with brothers in the Libya.

Upon arriving in Tripoli, Meshaal said he was "keen to consult" the Leader of the Revolution Muammar Gaddafi about developments "on more than one level."

Meshaal, who lives in exile in Syria, expressed his happiness to be in Jamahiriya and voiced his appreciation of Gaddafi principled stance and his historical support of the Palestinian people and their just cause.

Meshaal held talks with Saif Al-Islam Al-Gaddafi in Tripoli who then invited him to attend a wedding party at one of Tripoli's hotels.

There Meshaal made a speech in which he thanked the Libyan people and government for their continuous support of the Palestinian struggle for liberation.

Speaking at the wedding, Meshaal said "if Gaza bordered Libya, the situation would have different."

"We are committed to consultation with the Leader and to keep him updated on the latest developments and make such visits a success," Meshaal said.

Meshaal visited Yemen and

Iran over the past several days in a series of trips in part related to efforts to bring an end to Israeli oppression and occupation of Palestinian territories.

Merry Christmas!
