Former Chairman of NTC Mustafa Abdel Jalil

Abdel Jalil to be Questioned in Younis' Death

Benghazi— Former Chairman of the National Transitional Council (NTC) Mustafa Abdel Jalil will be questioned by a military court over the assassination of General Abdel Fatah Younis, the commander of rebel forces last year.

The move by the military court is significant in the over all process of bring everyone to justice in new Libya and in holding all accountable to whatever act they commit.

It is still early to know whether Abdul Jalil had any relations to the assassination in July 2011 which stunned the population as they were struggling to bring an end to the regime of the brutal dictator Gaddafi.

Since July last year rumors and on record statements by official and non-official individuals indicated that the head of the NTC who was acting as

President Barack Obama

Obama Wins US Presidential Elections

On Tuesday night, America re-elected President Barack Obama over his challenger, Mitt Romney, former Governor of Massachusetts.

This election season brought up several issues for government officials.

On Friday, Victorious in his re-election campaign, Obama cried while giving a speech to his campaign staff and volunteers.

He told the gathered young people there was no limit to what they could accomplish.

The speech touched on his start as a community organizer in Chicago and reflected his faith that his young volunteers and staff would accomplish great things in the decades to come.

Heads of state broadly welcomed

Obama's election to a second term in the White House but urged him to play a leading role in issues such as boosting the economy, solving climate change and improving relations with the Arab world.

World leaders rushed to offer Congratulations, including fellow UN Security Council members Britain, China, France and Russia as well as Obama's ancestral home in Kenya.

Obama received 303 electoral votes, while Romney only accumulated 206. Popular votes showed a much closer race, with about three million votes' worth of difference.

Obama has 60,893,249 votes as of the latest election results, while Romney has
